Chris Mott demonstrates IPP’s core values in his everyday role as a Facilities Supervisor/Custodial Manager. He also goes above and beyond in carrying out these values outside of work. Approximately a month ago, Chris was on his way home when he noticed some commotion in a parking lot. He noticed a gentleman running around his vehicle and then observed a State Trooper pull into the lot and then pull out an AED device. Having been trained in first aid and CPR, Chris pulled in to see if he could help. The passenger in the vehicle – a woman in her twenties - was in full cardiac arrest. The trooper issued Narcan and Chris helped deliver CPR with the use of the AED. A pulse was regained and the woman survived the incident thanks to the trooper and Chris’s quick thinking.

Chris demonstrates integrity and teamwork in all he does. He works in Klarman Hall, a fast-paced complex that has many events. He shows compassion and honesty in all he does. He holds people accountable and is very good at giving positive feedback. Chris has also recently been helping out in procurement for added support all the while maintaining his complex to the utmost standards.

Congratulations Chris!
